

BlackBerry Mobile Conferencing helps keep you organized and on time.

Dial in to the people you need, when you need them, from almost anywhere. Once you've installed the free BlackBerry® Mobile Conferencing<sup>1</sup> app on your BlackBerry® smartphone, you'll appreciate how it makes joining conference calls easier than ever. Scheduling calls is simple, too. You can use the app with your own BlackBerry smartphone or one provided to you by your organization. It works with calendar invites sent or received from any email service. Plus, it can discover conference information and dial you in automatically. Which is why BlackBerry Mobile Conferencing is sure to become an essential tool you'll rely on to manage your day.

BlackBerry Calendar integration

Schedule and join conference calls quickly and more easily right from the Calendar app on your BlackBerry smartphone. There's no additional app to launch.

Better conference call recognition

Conference call information found in meeting invites in any calendar on your BlackBerry smartphone is recognized automatically to help you stay organized and on time.

Join Now button

The BlackBerry Mobile Conferencing app adds a button to calendar reminders on your BlackBerry smartphone that can dial you in to calls automatically. If the invite includes multiple dial-in numbers for different locations, the app can choose the most appropriate one for you (within North America and the United Kingdom only).

Conference call ID

Now you can more easily keep track of the conference calls you've participated in. When you join a conference call, the meeting subject appears as the caller ID in the phone app. And when the call is over, the meeting subject appears in your call history.

Reconnect

Reconnect with one click if you're dropped from a conference call.

Conference profiles

Add conference call details to almost any meeting you schedule from your BlackBerry smartphone with a single click using conference call details from up to 10 profiles stored on your device.

Private moderator codes

Keep your moderator codes private. Invites sent using conference profiles stored on your BlackBerry smartphone include only the participant information needed to join the call. If conference information found in a meeting invite is yours, the app can use your stored profiles to dial you in as the moderator. So you can omit your moderator code from invites sent from your desktop for added privacy without sacrificing convenience.

Convert an email to a meeting invite

Help put an end to long email threads by scheduling a conference call with email participants in just a few clicks. The sender and recipients of the email are included as meeting attendees, the email subject becomes your meeting subject, and part of the email message is copied into your invite automatically. Just add your conference call details from a stored profile, click send, and you're set.

Get help, share and provide feedback

The BlackBerry Mobile Conferencing icon on your home screen takes you to video demos of key features, lets you share the app with friends or colleagues and allows you to provide feedback about the app directly to Research In Motion®.
